

Clam River

Hikers can explore 1.5 miles along this wild river and see evidence of a time when the stream and its surrounding area were not so wild: traces of a dam, extensive stone walls, and an intact house foundation. The 550-acre property offers three connected trails of 4.3 miles with moderate change in elevation.

Directions: Trail begins at the east edge of the parking lot for the Sandisfield Town Hall Annex (66 Sandisfield Rd, Sandisfield)

GPS: 42.1081, -73.1080 (four-season trailhead parking)

CLAM RIVER TRAIL MAP

TRAIL DESCRIPTION

Two Rivers Loop: 1.5 miles, round-trip
Difficulty: Easy (gentle grades, smooth footing)

Wolf Pine Trail: 1.2 miles, one-way
Difficulty: Moderate (uneven footing, elevation changes)

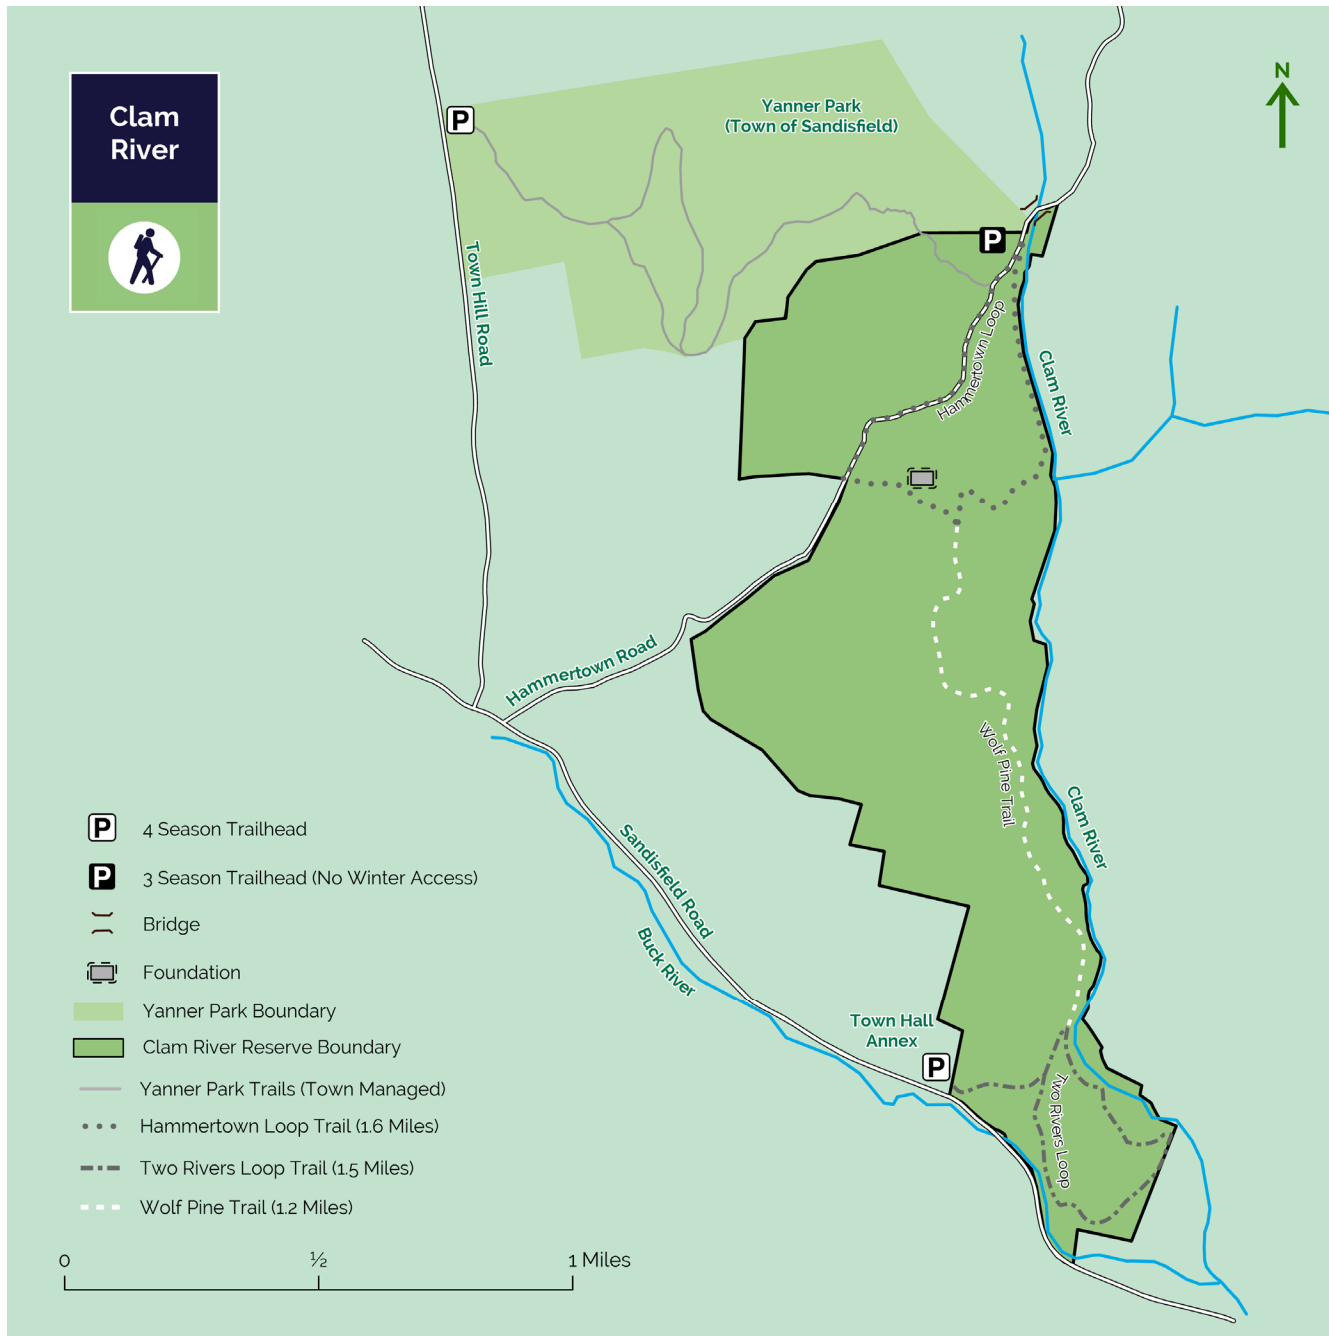

Hammertown Loop: 1.6 miles, round-trip
Difficulty: Moderate (uneven footing, elevation changes)

Much of the Hammertown Loop, at the northern end of the reserve, is on top of steep banks that hug the river under a thick canopy of hemlocks. Another section is along Hammertown Road.

At the southern end of the reserve is the Two Rivers Loop, which winds under cathedral pines and abuts both the Clam and another nearby stream, the Buck River. The two loop trails are connected by the Wolf Pine Trail, a portion of which also brings the hiker close to the river. A hiker in the reserve is never far from the sound of running water.

NATURAL HISTORY

The diverse habitat along the river and away from its banks has supported a panoply of wildlife, from the eastern pearlshell mussels and brook trout of the river to moose, deer, and bear. The newly created young-forest area should bring even more species into the preserve, increasing its attraction to hunters. The mature forested areas include hemlocks, white pines, including a few of immense girth, and a wide range of hardwoods. Large grape vines have been found on the property.
