PARSONS MARSH TRAIL MAP

Trail Description:

Trail: 1/3 mile, one-way

Difficulty: Accessible

On the 1,800-foot (1/3 mile) accessible trail, you will wind through an open meadow to a small pond, then into forested upland and vegetated wetland. Rest on the bench or picnic on the accessible table near the pond. Just beyond the pond, the trail transitions to boardwalk as it enters the forested wetland. The trail ends at an observation platform which provides open views from the edge of the marsh.

The Parsons Marsh trail and boardwalk were designed and constructed by Peter S. Jensen & Associates, LLC.

Natural History:

Admire pollinators in the meadow, look for amphibians by the pond, seek skunk cabbage in the wetland, and spot some of the 75 nesting bird species that have been identified in Parsons Marsh. The marsh and surrounding water bodies also house beaver, mink and otter. The forest in the southern part of the property is dominated by white pine but also includes such hardwoods as red maple, sugar maple, and black cherry. To the south you'll find large rock outcrops, remnants from the glaciers of 20,000 years ago.

Accessibility Details: The Parsons Marsh Trail is designed and built in 2018 to U.S. Forest Service trail accessibility standards (FSTAG). The first 600-feet of trail features crushed stone surfacing with a running slope not exceeding 8% and a cross slope not exceeding 5%. An accessible picnic table and bench are provided on a short spur near the pond. The last section of trail is comprised of 900-feet of curbed boardwalk, with a 41" passable width and grades not exceeding 7%.
